ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When users employ a printer driver having the function of automatically selecting a development mode, the invention is intended to make the function of automatically selecting a development mode more convenient to the users. To that end, when one of development modes including a vector mode and an image mode is automatically decided, the printer driver automatically decides a plurality of print setting items in printing data to be processed in the decided development mode depending on the contents of drawing.